Early Freeze-up On Lakes To Foil Ore Carrying Freighters

By ROBERT W. IRVIN
United Press International
CHICAGO (UPI) — A record breaking November cold snap from the East and South today threatened Great Lakes freighters with an early freeze-up.

Great Lakes freighters, trying to make up for time lost by the steel strike, battled the force winds and heavy ice to get vital ore shipments to the recently-opened mills.

The water was already beginning to freeze at the huge Duluth ore docks on Lake Superior. "The Lake is finished steaming and that means a freeze-up," a Coast Guard officer at Ashland, Wis., said.

One tugboat sunk under the heavy weight of ice, a freighter was reported ice-bound in Lake Michigan and two barge tows had trouble getting through ice jams on the Mississippi River.

No immediate danger, passed through the Soo locks Tuesday.

The Coast Guard at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., said there were close to 500 freighters still plying the lakes, about 50 of them, all ice-covered but in no immediate danger, passed through the Soo locks Tuesday.

The big freeze already had closed the ship canal through the Keweenaw Peninsula on Lake Superior. The locks on the Fox River in Lake Michigan's Green Bay were frozen so tight that not even Coast Guardsmen's axes could break them open.

The cold wave which posed a threat to shipping reached the eastern and extreme southern sections of the country Tuesday night.

Temperatures dropped to near freezing or below over the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and south Texas.

Some early morning readings included Richmond, Va., 24; Florence, S. C., 32; Macon, Ga., 34; Charlotte, N. C., 28; Baton Rouge, La., 27; San Antonio, Tex., 25; and Mobile, Ala., 29.

A warning trend followed the blast of cold air across the country today. The mercury climbed to above freezing in Great Falls, Mont., and Rapid City, S. D., which had a zero reading Tuesday reported — 35 degrees this morning.

The Weather Bureau said the moderating trend would be felt over the northern and central Rockies eastward through the north and central plains states, Great Lakes and Ohio Valley.

Skies over the mid-section of the country were partly cloudy. Rain drenched the West Coast, and snow flurries were forecast in the northeast and the northern Great Lakes.

Thanksgiving Foods Will Be Plentiful; Variety Is Large

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As Thanksgiving approaches, almost all the holiday favorites are to be found among the top values offered this week-end.

There are plenty of Thanksgiving turkeys this year. Also, for those who prefer pork, there are plentiful supplies of loins, chops, and hams. Lamb and beef are also being offered as good buys. Poultry and eggs continue to be good buys.

Most of the customary trimmings are also ample for the holiday demand. Among the plentiful at the vegetable bins are sweet potatoes, carrots, onions, potatoes, cauliflower and salad greens.

Good supplies of apples, grapes, oranges, pears, bananas, grapefruit and avocados add to the good buys in fruits.

In fish, the best values this week-end are shrimp, fish sticks and portions, and canned tuna.

These are the week-end's best values.

Best Buys
Food shoppers for the weekend will again find meat counters featuring a wide variety of items, with the emphasis on Thanksgiving favorites. Plenty of turkeys will be on hand at reasonable prices. In beef, boneless chuck roasts, rib roasts, and round roasts and steaks will be the attractions. In pork, there'll be specials on chops, chops, butts, fresh and smoked hams. And lamb legs and chops will also be good values.

At the dairy-section, look for continued economy prices on eggs. All the dairy products will be abundant, and will include such holiday specialties as egg-nog.

In the produce section, you'll still find an excellent variety of vegetables and fruits at reasonable prices. In vegetables, best buys will be medium size onions, eastern potatoes, sweet potatoes, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, mushrooms, carrots, spinach and cooking greens. Other good buys are beets, celery, cucumbers, endive, escarole, head lettuce, acorn and butternut squash, and broccoli.

In fruit, top values are apples, avocados, grapefruit, limes and persimmons. Others recommended are grapes, apples, pears, oranges and lemons.

Savings Bonds Are Good Investment Says Max Beale

Never before have United States Savings Bonds been so attractive to investors and small savers alike. Max Beale, chairman of the Calloway County Savings Bond Committee, said today in commenting on the one-half per cent increase in interest rates on old and new Series E and H Savings Bonds.

"Forty million people automatically benefit from the recent legislation passed by Congress," Beale said, "because that many hold outstanding bonds in the amount of $42.6 billion. For the first time, the hike in rates applies to old Series E and H Savings Bonds, as well as those being bought currently. So, it will be to the advantage of most bond owners to hold onto their old bonds, thus automatically receiving the benefit of the increase."

The new law does two things: (1) it provides that all Savings Bonds bought on and after June 1 drew 3 1/2 per cent interest when held to maturity, and (2) it increases by at least one-half of one per cent the interest return on all outstanding E and H bonds, regardless of their age, for the period from June 1, 1959, to their maturity. In addition, the Treasury has promised a 10-year extension privilege for all E bonds, both old and new.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly the fact that every person who owns an E or H bond benefits from the new rate, without having to do anything about it," Beale continued. "I would therefore encourage the public to do two things: keep holding their old bonds, and keep on buying the new ones. This is the finest Savings Bonds package ever offered."

Letter to the Editor

Mr. James C. Williams
Editor and Times
Murray, Kentucky

Dear Jim:
May I take this opportunity to thank you and your staff for the courtesies shown to me personally and to the members of the Democratic ticket during this long and arduous campaign.

It has been a great pleasure for me to renew many acquaintances among newspaper people during the past ten months, and it certainly has been a privilege for me to call on many of you in your own plants and meet the people who assist you in your local operation.

To say that my associations with the press of Kentucky have been pleasant would be the understatement of the year. Again may I say "thank you" and express the hope that I may be of service to you at some time in the future.

Sincerely,
Charles E. Adams

Wetherby Not Candidate For Posts

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Former Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, mentioned as a possible choice for state conservation commissioner, chairman of the state Public Service Commission in the new state administration today said he is "not an applicant" for either post.

Wetherby, a supporter of Gov. elect Bert T. Combs in 1958 and this year, said he has not been approached by anyone as yet for a position in the new administration which takes office Dec. 8.

After Combs' landslide victory election night, Wetherby told newsmen that he did not think former governors should take posts as department heads in the new administration.

Wetherby, an attorney, has been practicing law here since he left the governor's office.

Queried about a speculative news story on appointive jobs in the new state administration, Combs said there had been several such stories lately.

"They have had a poor beating average," Combs added.

Others listed as possible appointees in the speculative stories were: old Series E and H Savings Bonds, as well as those being bought currently. So, it will be to the advantage of most bond owners to hold onto their old bonds, thus automatically receiving the benefit of the increase."

Russell Dyche, Long Time Newspaperman Dies In Lexington

LEXINGTON (UPI) — Veteran newspaperman Russell Dyche of London, Ky., died Tuesday afternoon at St. Joseph Hospital at the age of 75 following a long illness.

Dyche, editor emeritus of The Sentinel — Echo, was state parks director under Republican Gov. Simeon Willis from 1944 to 1947 and had headed the Kentucky Press Association and the Southwestern Association of State Parks Directors. He also was active president of the 1st National Bank at London.

Born in 1884, he got his early newspaper training on the London Mountaineer, operated by his father, the late A. R. Dyche.

Following only a year in high school he entered the newspaper business and a short time later bought the paper from his father, later selling it to start a paper at Corbin with his brother.

Dyche entered National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio, at 19 and was graduated in 1907, after which he returned to London to run the London Sentinel and then several years later bought it and The London Echo and merged the two operations.

Dyche was instrumental in the creation of Levi Jackson State Park near London and recently its amphitheater was named for him.

Last May 16 a special "Russell Dyche Day" was set aside by London citizens to honor him for his many contributions of his own time and money.

Dyche put $2,000 of his $3,500 per year salary as parks director into added improvements at Levi Jackson Park.

He printed dozens of pamphlets giving details of historical events that took place in Laureate County and in 1954 published a book of the county's history.

Among his civic contributions were campaigns for all-weather roads and fire protection in London. The first volunteer chief of the Fire Department, he bought the community's first pump.

Dyche and his wife, the former Mae Martin, last June 11 celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. He had been in failing health for several months.

Prizes will be awarded the students selling the most. From the money earned last year, two modern folding tables were presented the cafeteria at Austin's and Murray High School. Additional playground equipment was purchased for Carter School the year before.

Big Federal Offense Against Underworld Gets Underway

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-one men sit today in a double row of chairs before a marble wall in a federal court. Their clothes are well tailored, their fingernails manicured, their hair sleek, their faces impassive.

Among them is a virtual "day of directors" of the rackets in the United States. Some have records running from narcotics to white slavery, assault to suspicion of murder.

The government is trying to send them to prison for five years. It is one of the biggest federal offensives against the underworld since the late Al Capone was bagged for income tax evasion.

And, as in that case, the 21 are charged with none of the major felonies but with the abstract offense of "conspiring to obstruct justice."

The 21 represent one-third of a band of men surprised on Nov.

14, 1957, at the hilltop home of the late Joseph Barbara Sr., near Apalachin, N.Y.

Attempts To Flee
They took to the woods, their cashmere coats got caught on barbed wire fences, their fine leather shoes caked with mud, their limousines caught in road-blocks that day as they sought to flee when Barbara's wife spotted a state police car.

The government charges they have steadfastly and unanimously refused to disclose the purpose of the meeting two years ago.

Their story is that they just happened to drop in on their aging friend, Barbara. It was quite a coincidence. They dropped in simultaneously from such spots as Scranton, Dallas, Miami, Niagara Falls, Cleveland, San Gabriel, Calif. and Phoenix.

Milton R. Wessel, special assistant to the U.S. attorney general who heads the prosecution, admitted at the outset that the government does not know what really happened.

"The conspiracy has been successful," he told the jury. "I tell you frankly and fairly that the government will not be able to show what was going on at that meeting."

There are a good many suspicions of why it was called.

Kingpin Shot Dead
Albert Anastasia, kingpin of the New York rackets, had been shot dead in a barber's chair in the Park Sheraton Hotel just 20 days before. The "boys" may have been choosing a successor.

The McClellan committee in Washington was putting the heat on labor racketeering and there may have been a discussion of ways and means of weathering that storm.

Each of the 21 men there was of Italian ancestry. Investigations have up evidence indicating a considerable number of the assembly were members of the Mafia, the Sicilian criminal society.

But none of that is mentioned to the eight men and four women jurors. Now are the criminal records of defendants brought out. Only that they allegedly have not come clean on the purpose of Apalachin.

It is going to be a tough charge to prove. The trial already has lasted more than three weeks and is expected to pass the first of the year.

FFA Chapter Gives Program

The Murray College High chapter of Future Farmers of America presented a chapel program on Tuesday, November 17, to the student assembly of Murray College High School. The program was introduced by Danny Kemp. A short devotional was held consisting of a song led by Sherrill Gargus, a scripture reading by Dwayne Bucy, and a prayer by Chad Turnbow.

The program was based on the use of parliamentary procedure. Bobby Fullwell gave a demonstration on the use of the gavel. A short report on "The Key to Good Chapter Meetings" was given by Danny Phillips.

Two demonstrations on the proper and improper way to use parliamentary procedure were given by the chapter Parliamentary Procedure Team. This was followed by a short talk on the FFA Organization presented by Don Oliver.

Nelson Key, who placed third in the state Creed Contest last year, gave a short recitation of the FFA Creed. The regular closing ceremonies were conducted.

Dinner Meeting Will Be Held On Friday

Key Basket Gives Eagles Victory

Gary Key sank a jumper in the last minute of play to enable the Kirksey Eagles to defeat College High 51-50 in a close game played in the Carr Health Building Saturday night.

The Eagles commanded a 12-8 margin at the end of the first quarter but were trailing by four points, 28-24, at the halftime stop. College High was able to score only six points in the third frame. Kirksey swept to a 42-34 advantage in the third quarter as Danny Edwards kept driving for the goal in a big 13-point third quarter spurt.

Kirksey reacted to a stall to protect a small lead in the last three minutes of play. But the four-weak team with both Edwards and Smith on the sidelines, could not hold out. College High managed to briefly grasp the lead in the waning minutes of play but the all-important basket by Key clinched the win for the Eagles.

Edwards was high for Kirksey with 22 and Grogan had 22 for the Colts.

Baltimore Favored To Tie Forty-Niners For Western Division NFL Sunday Clash

By EARL WRIGHT

United Press International
The Baltimore Colts, defending National Football League champions, are favored to tie the San Francisco Forty-Niners for the Western Division lead when they clash in Sunday's top game.

The Colts (5-3) trail the Forty-Niners (6-2) by a game and are seven-point favorites to whip the California club in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium before a sellout crowd of 55,567.

The New York Giants and Cleveland Browns, tied for the Eastern Division lead with 6-2 records, and the Philadelphia Eagles (5-3) are favored in the other key games. New York is a 5½ point choice to down the Chicago Cardinals (2-6) at Minneapolis and the Browns are nine-point favorites to defeat the Pittsburgh Steelers (3-4-1) at Cleveland. The Eagles entertain the Los Angeles Rams (2-6) and are favored by 3½ points.

In the other games, the Chicago Bears (4-4) are favored over the Lions (3-5-1) by five points at Detroit and the Packers (3-5) are four-point choices to defeat the Washington Redskins (3-5) at Green Bay.

Four Games Remain
Each of the 12 teams has four more regular-season games.

The Forty-Niners are halfway through a tough, four-game road trip. They lifted their Western lead to two games by winning at Los Angeles but the margin dropped to one when they lost a 14-3 decision to the Bears last Sunday at Chicago. After playing at Baltimore, the Forty-Niners end their road swing at Cleveland.

If they win at Baltimore, the Forty-Niners will assure themselves of at least a one-game lead going into their final two home games against the Colts and Packers. The passing of John Unitas will provide San Francisco's biggest headache Sunday. The Baltimore star has thrown 22 touchdowns since this year, only less than the NFL season high of 28 set by Sid Luckman of the Bears in 1943.

The Colts have lost only two of their last 12 home games.

Giants Seek Touchdown
Charley Conerly and George Shaw, New York's top quarterbacks, are injured but Conerly may see some action against the Cardinals. The Giants, beaten by the Steelers last Sunday, haven't scored a touchdown in the last 11 quarters they have played. They edged the Cardinals, 9-3, two weeks ago on three Pat Summerall field goals.

The Browns entertain the Steelers squad that handed them a 17-7 defeat in their season opener. Cleveland boasts the league's longest current winning streak, five games.

Los Angeles takes a four-game losing streak to Philadelphia. The Eagles could tie for the Eastern lead by winning — if both New York and Cleveland lose.

The Bears, third in the West, trail the Forty-Niners by two games and can cut that deficit to one if they beat the Lions and the Colts down San Francisco. The Redskins visit a Green Bay team that has lost its last five starts.

Medical schools in the U.S. have fewer than 7,000 graduates a year.

Ohio State University economists predict an increase of about five per cent or more in U.S. consumer spending during 1960.

REVEREND, WIFE ACCUSED IN NUDITY—Rev. and Mrs. Tommy Swinson sit in recorder's court, Yanceyville, N. C., during hearing on blackmail charges. The Rev. G. A. Hamby, fellow Baptist minister, claims that while he was staying with the Swinsons, Mrs. Swinson walked into the kitchen nude, took him into a bedroom, and that Reverend Swinson then rushed in, took photographs, beat him and tried to force him to sign over his car.

Brides Kidnaped To Meet High Cost Of Loving

BEERSHEBA, Israel — (UPI) — Any Arab who cannot afford the current market price for the young lady of his heart's desire escapes from bachelorhood these days simply by kidnaping her.

Paying for a bride is a custom in this part of the world that goes back to the Biblical days of Jacob, who worked in Laban's fields for 14 years so he could marry Rachel.

In recent years, however, due largely to a rise in the standard of living that has increased the price of a bride, these kidnappings have become a way of life among the Arabs who live in this part of Israel.

Another reason for this development probably is the declining influence of fathers. Education and the proximity of a new world have fostered a rebelliousness among Arab girls unheard of by their parents.

The kidnappings — the couples prefer to call them elopements — sometimes are carried out in the best traditions of western movies.

One recent incident involved 18-year-old Fatima, step-daughter of Ahmed Faraj Abu Bari, a storekeeper of the celebrated el-Huzail tribe in the Negev Desert.

Fatima was seized by five men as she walked to a well near her home to bring back water. One of the five men was Said Ifnash, who said he was in love with Fatima but could not afford to buy her.

With male members of the encampment in futile pursuit, Fatima was whisked off in a truck. Her step-father obtained a court order for her return and the involved parties appeared before a Beersheba magistrate.

Said and Fatima produced evidence they had been married. The magistrate ruled the court order had been issued without full knowledge of the facts and decided not to force Fatima to return to her parents.

The present market price for brides among Israeli Moslems is approximately 2,000 pounds (the equivalent of $1,000 in U.S. money). This represents an increase over the last four years of about 700 pounds ($350), attributable by official sources to the jump in the standard of living among Arabs brought on by improved economic conditions.

To save money, some marriages are arranged by barter. This doesn't always work.

Hasana Bint Kassem el-Hamat was married recently to Andawi Hamed, a member of a neighboring Galleen Bedouin tribe. In exchange, Andawi gave his sister in marriage to Hasana's brother.

Andawi's sister had no children during the first two years of her marriage to Hasana's brother so he divorced her in the Moslem fashion by saying to her three times: "You are divorced."

Hasana's father then ordered his daughter back home in order to cancel the whole deal. Andawi offered to pay his father-in-law 2,000 pounds, but the father began negotiations with another Bedouin to marry Hasana for a better price.

In the meantime, Hasana has given birth to a son.

Old Bath - New Look

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

THE LIVING room's redecorated, the dining room's dolled up, kitchens are streamlined and bedrooms brightened. But what about the bath?

All too often, it's the one room in the house that is completely neglected. Why not spruce it up?

Full Treatment

By this, we don't mean just buying a new shower curtain. If plumbing fixtures look outdated, then it's time to give an old bathroom a completely new look.

That's what one family did and they're delighted with results.

They stripped the room bare, removing old tiles and fixtures discolored with wear and age.

New Plans

Then they plotted a completely new bathroom. A window that looked into a house next door was filled in with shelves and a ventilator fan was installed.

Tiles and fixtures were the next consideration.

New Styron Tiles

Shopping about for ideas, the lady of the house discovered new styron tiles, available in a wide range of pastel and in pretty patterns, too. Best news of all, they were inexpensive!

Her final choice was white tile with pattern tile used to break up its austere look and create design interest.

Snowflake Pattern

She chose a soft gray snowflake design on a white ground for the patterned tile. She used it to frame the window shelf, in a base-line border around the walls and scattered a few design tiles into large wall areas as well.

A sale on matched bathtub, sink and toilet fixtures resulted in another saving. These were chosen in a pale pink.

Applied Design

To tie the scheme together, she purchased a gray shower curtain. Then she headed for her local sewing center for instruction on applying a design to it. The design, of course, was the snowflake motif from the pattern tile.

The job took time and careful shopping, but all hands agree they couldn't be more pleased with the new look they've given to the bath.

Singer Sewing Centers AUTOMATIC zigzag attachment is used to appliqué snowflake on shower curtain.

HERE'S HOW the bathroom looked before it was given new fixtures and tile.

NEW PALE PINK TUB and sink make a soft contrast to fresh white tile. Snowflake tiles provide subtle design note.

How To Bring Up A Problem Father

By EDDIE HOOBES

My father is a problem. He drinks, smokes, gambles, and likes lots of ladies. Let's face it though—a kid my age needs a mother's love. But whenever I ask Pop about it...he says "Shut up and deal the cards—I need a wife like I need a hole in the head!"

Someday, however, he'll come home with stars in his eyes and a lovely lady on his arm. He will ask my permission to marry. I will give it.

And from that day on my new mother will have the job of caring for two men: myself, a tired age 8, and one who is slightly immature, but sings rather well.

Babies Of Smoking Moms Are Smaller

By DELOS SMITH
UPI White Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The babies of women who smoke during their pregnancies weigh less at birth than the babies of women who don't. This the conclusion of a medical scientist and it was indubitably true of the 1,823 women whose smoking habits came under his scrutiny.

"The reduction in weight is by no means trial," said Dr. C. R. Lowe. The babies of 1,155 non-smoking women weighed six ounces more, on the average, than the babies of the 668 steady smokers. He said there were two explanations.

One is that tobacco might have a direct drug-like effect on the unborn baby, since an earlier scientific study had shown that the heart rate of the unborn in-cases when the mother smokes a cigarette.

Might Restrict Circulation
"An even more credible explanation," he continued, is that smoking restricts the maternal blood circulation which is especially set up for the needs of the developing unborn.

Lowe pointed to the studies which showed that "in most normal adults" smoking sets off a spasmodic narrowing of surface blood vessels "which may last for half an hour or longer." He said there is some evidence that women are more sensitive to this effect than men.

"It is therefore quite possible that vaso-constrictive blood vessel narrowing repeated ten or more times a day, might have an appreciable effect upon the nutrition of the fetus particularly during the later months of pregnancy," he concluded.

Lowe is a member of the faculty of the University of Birmingham, England. He was inspired to make his study by the 1957 study of the American obstetrician, Dr. W. J. Simpson. On the assumption that a baby which weighs five and a half pounds or less at birth, was born prematurely, Simpson found that women who smoked during pregnancy were twice as likely to give birth to a "premature" baby as women who didn't.

Cites Improvements
Lowe observed that during recent decades there had been many improvements in obstetrical services but there had been no substantial decline in the number of babies who were low in weight at birth.

"In the same period the proportion of women who smoke has risen steadily, and this must have contributed in some degree to the relative constancy of the proportion of infants born at low weight," he said in his report to the British Medical Journal.

Organization Man In Smuggling Too

AACHEN, Germany. — (UPI) — Smuggling across the German border isn't what it used to be, but customs officials still have plenty of headaches.

Today's smuggler is more likely to be the driver for a reputable firm than a professional criminal, as was the case 10 years ago, when the German-Belgian border near Aachen used to be the scene of spectacular gun battles and chases between police and smugglers.

Modern smuggling is a refined operation conducted on main roads instead of through the woods, according to the customs officials.

Their biggest problems, they said, are truck drivers who declare only part of their goods and firms which prepare bills of lading on which goods are listed as far less than their real worth.

But one of the most profitable forms of smuggling has almost completely disappeared: A new German coffee tax passed in 1953 erased the difference in price between Belgian and German coffee prices. That killed the black market in that commodity.

Subtract Games From Arithmetic Says Editor

By EVERETT R. IRWIN
United Press International

Chicago — (UPI) — It's time to take the "grocery store and going-to-the-bank" games out of arithmetic courses.

So says George Russell, veteran mathematics editor for a textbook publisher (Scott, Foresman and Co.). He believes basic mathematics should be taught from the first grade on — without sugar coating.

Arithmetic is "the least liked, most poorly learned and soonest forgotten of all grade school subjects," Russell said.

Recently, he helped complete a new textbook program for teaching and learning elementary arithmetic.

Rules aren't stated in the new books. Instead, all operations such as addition or multiplication are worked out in pictures, with a brief verbal explanation.

The children see what is happening to the numbers, Russell explained, then state the rules in their own terms rather than merely memorize what is in the book.

"We aren't against memorization," Russell said. "Lots of facts have to be memorized no matter how you teach arithmetic. But we want children to understand what is being memorized, not simply parrot what the teacher or the book says."

Under the new program, third grade children are taught to use equations. Russell said children's greatest weakness in the past has been in solving verbal problems.

"Most children today can add, subtract, multiply and divide very well as long as the teacher or the book tells them what to do," he said.

"But give many children a verbal problem, in which they have to decide for themselves how to proceed, the numbers, and they founder. They haven't been given an orderly method of solving problems."

Russell said teachers using the program have found that once children learn to translate verbal problems into equations, they do much better at problem solving.

It also aids their mathematical thinking, so they can take up fairly difficult work at an early age. The sixth grade program in Russell's system, for example, teaches ratios, per cents and other work that used to be held back until the seventh or eighth grades.

Children who understand ratios and other basic mathematical principles don't need grocery store games to keep them busy or interested, Russell said. They like arithmetic for its own sake, because they see the sense of it.

A new approach to arithmetic is needed for two reasons—one a great need for mathematicians and engineers in the space era. "Their introduction to mathematics can no longer be postponed until high school and college," Russell said.

The other reason, he said, is that machines have largely taken over the job of computing in modern business.

"This doesn't mean that pupils don't have to learn how to add or subtract," Russell said. "It merely emphasizes that the human mind it to think mathematically is more important than the ability to compute. Someone has to know how to analyze problems before the machine can be put to work to solve them."

Collecting Hats Hobby Of Singer

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Jane Morgan is ready about her hobby. The singer, billed as "The Fascination Girl" of show business, is fascinated with hats, to the extent that she has collected nearly 400 from all parts of the world and insured the lot with Lloyd's of London for $100,000.

Her closets are crammed with cowboy hats, baseball hats, sombreros, hats with historical significance, and hats which are typical of countries she has toured as a vocalist.

The tiny, blonde Miss Morgan explained that her hobby grew from her interest in clothes, hats included. She confessed to paying as much as $250 to a milliner like John-Fredricks for a hat she will wear in her act. The singer's wardrobe investment runs into five figures and include labels of Balmain, Dior and other French designers.

Marie Antoinette Hat
Her first hat for collection, not for wear, was a copy she had made of a plumed and jeweled job which Marie Antoinette was supposed to have worn as she was taken to the guillotine. She saw it in a museum in Paris, where she first made a name as a singer. She has acquired since then a London bobby's hat, a postman's hat from Manchester, England, one from the Scots Guards, a bearskin hat worn by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, a beaded pill-box-like hat worn in the 17th Century in Turkey, and a Persian lamb fur hat which once belonged to a lieutenant in the Russian czarist army. She would like to get one of those towering bearskins which men of the Buckingham Palace guard wear. She owns a cap that once belonged to Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers, a plumed chapeau worn by Mme. Du Barry, a gondolier's hat from Venice, a shepherd's tain from the Basque region of Spain and France, and a slouch presented to her by a Portuguese fisherman.

"I don't particularly care whether the hat belonged to a man or a woman," she said, "just so it reflects the city or country I visited."

Hit With French

Miss Morgan, a native of Boston, worked her way through the Juilliard School of Music by singing with dance bands in New York. She had planned a concert career, until she met Bernard Hilda, the French impresario, who persuaded her to take a night club engagement in Paris. She was an immediate hit with the French, and eventually played posh night spots all over Europe before coming home.

Her manager dubbed her The Fascination Girl, after he record of an old song, "Fascination" sold more than a million copies. Miss Morgan recently married Larry Mitth, the composer, and when I asked her if he also collected, she answered: "Yes, me."

The female phalarope is larger than the male, has brighter plumage and takes the initiative in courtship. The male builds the nest, incubates the eggs and looks after the young.

Hurricane Hints For Homeowners

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Allied Homeowners Association recommends the following precautionary steps for homeowners living in hurricane target areas:
—Put up storm shutters or board windows; stock emergency supplies of food and water; provide standby cooking facilities which do not depend on electricity.
—Check flashlights and other emergency lighting equipment.
—Secure loose objects outside the house — garbage cans, outdoor furniture, awnings, television antenna.

—Make certain that a window or door can be opened on the side of the house opposite the wind. Otherwise air pressure within the dwelling will be uneven.

After the storm, additional safety measures include — removal of tree limbs which have been broken, speedy repair of water and wind damage to the dwelling. If power lines have fallen, do not touch them under any circumstances. Notify the power company or police. Do not approach pools of water in the general area of the downed line.

NANCY

"I'll show Rollo, the rich kid, my new piggy bank."

Then Connie did it. "What did he say?" "Nothing," said Mal. "He admitted he took the gun out of the drawer. He did that. I—I imagine, for my sake. He wanted me as the owner of the gun, to get into any trouble, but apart from that."

I suppose I had been trying to believe that miraculously Chuck would have an explanation for himself. I wasn't going to be able to believe that any more.

"But, Mal," Connie said, "you mean he hasn't told the police anything?"

"Not a thing. That Lieutenant says he's been questioning him for hours, but he just sits there, refusing to answer. When we were alone together, I thought, I was sure he'd talk to me, his own father, but he didn't. I hired a lawyer for him at once, Macguire. He's supposed to be the best criminal lawyer in town. But when I told him, he didn't even seem to take it in. I can't understand. I just can't understand. He didn't do it. I know he didn't do it. Whatever the incentive, I know that's never."

Suddenly he was crying. He had thrown his hands up to cover his face, but I could hear the choked, agonized sobs.

Connie hurried to him and sat on the arm of his chair, running her hand over his coarse gray hair.

"Mal," she said, "Mal dear, (Lil) be all right. It's got to be all right."

"But—but if he tell the truth? Then why can't he tell the truth? Doesn't he realize? That Lieutenant... he said... if he goes on like this, if he refuses to talk, that's going to be enough for the District Attorney to arrest him, to bring him to trial, to charge him with—"

The phone in the hall rang. I started toward the door, but Connie was ahead of me.

Mal didn't seem to realize she had gone. Very slowly, his head came down from his face and he was looking at me—not as me but just as anyone who happened to be there. The tears were sliding down his cheeks.

"Why did I buy that gun?" he asked pitifully.

A summons from Lieutenant Trant to report to the police headquarters awaited Connie and George Hadley, as "Shadow of Guilt" takes a surprising turn Monday.

ACCOMPLISHED WING. BOSTON — GFE — Leo Lubine, veteran right wing of the National Hockey League's Boston Bruins, is considered one of Canada's outstanding softball pitchers.

Nebraska is the only state in the nation where the gasoline tax is the largest single source of revenue. It accounted for about 40 per cent of the state's income.

FACTS

PHILADELPHIA — GFE — There is a unique "factory" in downtown Philadelphia where there is a foreman for ever five workers and each supervisor is a psychologist with a master's or doctor's degree.

The raw materials of this "factory" are the woman who is too nervous to do a simple task, the man who explodes at a routine order, the youth not bright enough to follow simple instructions.

The operation is a pilot project based on the assumption that vocational therapy, which has worked so well for the physically handicapped, should prove equally effective for those suffering emotionally.

The non-sectarian Philadelphia Jewish Employment and Vocational Service, using $26,158 of its own money and a Federal grant of $39,115, began the experiment six months ago under the direction of Dr. Saul S. Leshner.

Dr. Leshner said the goal is to develop a work "personality" rather than work skills. "We consider ourselves successful if the worker does what the boss tells him without rebelling, gets along with fellow workers, comes to work on time and sits at the worktable for long periods."

He said all of his "clients" have been diagnosed as unemployed.

Well over half have severe emotional disturbances, others are mentally retarded or victims of epilepsy. One-third have never been employed.

Dr. Leshner said each client is given a series of tests so that a program can be set up which is geared to the individual — how the foreman should handle him or her and the type of tasks to be assigned.

These tasks, all relatively simple, are performed in a simulated factory which is like one of many "left-type" shops, and clients are paid wages as soon as they enter the work adjustment phase.

Dr. Leshner said the first six months of the project have been successful. He said that of the 15 clients already placed in competitive jobs, only three have failed.

SHADOW OF GUILT

A NEW THRILLER

by PATRICK QUENTIN

CHAPTER 18

"VIVIAN was frightened," Mal Ryan was saying as he entered us into the hall. "Lieutenant Trant went on questioning her. And she got frightened. She didn't know what she was doing. I know she didn't, but she told him that she'd seen Chuck in our bedroom on Saturday night. She told him that Chuck must have taken my gun, and then she admitted that we had no idea where he'd been all day Sunday."

"I'd known, of course I'd known that Vivian would keep her head. Mal came toward us, walking very slowly. I thought his knees were going to buckle under him. He reached my wife and put a hand on her arm for support.

"You've got to explain, Connie. I don't understand what Vivian says. What is it? What's been happening? They're going to pick Chuck up in Chicago. The Lieutenant says that there'll be no difficulty about extradition. They'll be bringing him back tomorrow, he says, for further questioning."

His eyes, vague and dull, moved from one of our faces to the other as if he were searching for some evidence of conspiracy to prove that he was dreaming it all.

"But why, Connie? How can they possibly think that Chuck took that gun and— and killed Don Saxby?"

Ala took an impulsive step toward him. All the sultry defiance that had been in her eyes was now gone. Her lips were quivering with shame and remorse, and she wasn't acting, I could tell. She knew I knew and loved and respected her, and she was justifying stranger.

"Uncle Mal," she cried. "On poor Uncle Mal, you'll never forgive me—never!"

We went into the living room. And there was Vivian, half hysterical, fluttering all over the place, dramatizing her " ordeal." I'd never realized before that Connie disliked her, but now her expression was a dead giveaway.

While Ala, very pale and contrite, sat on a stiff-backed chair, Connie and I explained to Mal everything which I'd only jeered in to Vivian on the phone.

It was, of course, far too late to think up any way of shielding Chuck now, and, once we'd told all there was to tell, I decided it was kinder to Mal if we left.

He was wonderful about it, very dignified and polite, but his love for Chuck was as basic as I less demonstrative than Connie's, and I knew he could only think that Ala had behaved like a floozy and that I, in encouraging her, had been almost as irresponsible.

As Ala and Connie and I drove home in a taxi, I wintrily con-

Backstairs At The Whitehouse

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House.

The staff of President Eisenhower is well aware that during his forthcoming 20,000-mile trip to Asia and other points, some areas of the world will be exposed for the first time to one of the truly unusual aspects of Democracy, American Style, in operation—the White House reporters and photographers.

These men and women are specialists in their work and they do not always endeavor themselves to people in strange lands who simply cannot understand why a world leader of presidential stature would suffer himself to be questioned in public by commoners.

Eisenhower held an open press conference in Bonn, Germany, last August and the German reporters were highly reluctant to ask questions, even after the President stepped in the middle of the conference and invited the Germans to speak up. Only two or three of them did so, and then quite unenthusiastically.

On the forthcoming trip, Eisenhower may be moving so rapidly as to rule out press conferences along the way. He'll have more time in India than about any other place, but there is as yet no indication of a press conference in New Delhi.

The people of Asia — India, Pakistan and Afghanistan — may

In London last September, the British rate — commented in print on the check of the American reporters in addressing Hagerty to his face as "Jim".

House staff members are over in the Mediterranean area today, making a planning visit at every stop to be covered by President on his trip. In every country visited thus far by the President, Hagerty always has seen to it that at least one carload of reporters travels within two or three car lengths of the President's limousine, particularly in processions.

In this way, the reporters in the "pool" car can hear and see record reaction to the President. Later they report to their colleagues who must proceed in other vehicles nearer the rear of the motorcade.

The British reporters last Summer were utterly astonished by this arrangement. British officialdom from the Crown on down has a haughty attitude toward most newsmen and will not permit these men to clutter up their public appearances. French officials felt much the same way last Summer until they saw the American system in operation. The British and French reporters loved the idea.

Even in the United States, many average American citizens take their daily newspapers for granted. They want their news fresh, accurate and up-to-date. But as spectators, they frequently have difficulty in understanding why a Washington reporter races to a telephone to transmit something the President said or did.

The loud American cry for telephones and telegraph wires will ring out from Rome to New Delhi next month and invariably, the local residents will wonder why the crazy Americans are in such a hurry.

All across America, millions of citizens will know within minutes by newspaper, radio or television what the President saw, what he said and what he did. And they'll accept it as a matter of course. The news from Afghanistan might be a mile slow in getting out, however. There the long distance telephone to London operates only on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, and Eisenhower will be there on a Wednesday.
